Alien spies at Erindale!

by Harry Geek

Recent sightings of bright lights and flying objects around the Kaneff Centre have lead to an investigation by The Inquisitor that has revealed that the newest building on the Erindale Campus is really a facility constructed by beings from the Gexenon galaxy to observe intelligent life on Earth. The question remains, though, why Erindale has been chosen for such observation.

In an exclusive interview with The Inquisitor, Xoclis, captain of the mothership that receives all data collected from an information unit in a secret location in the Kaneff Centre, stated that, "since first directing our energies to studying life forms in an institution of higher learning, we are close to concluding that there is indeed some degree of intellectual activity in this sphere of the Earth." However, Xoclis and his research team have discovered several phenomena that baffle them.

"What we find bewildering is the strange practice of holding a vote - which you Earthlings refer to as referendum or election - in which 2.59781% of the population participate. Though puzzling, this concept fascinates us Genexenonians and we will be staying longer to further study this practice." Xoclis also cited OSAP scams, line-ups at the Registrar's and ECSU President Dave Amato as further topics for research.

A further investigation by The Inquisitor has revealed that electronic transmissions have been sent between the hours of midnight and 5 am several times a week from Dean Silcox's office to some point above the Kaneff Centre.

Although the Dean of Social Science refused comment, an anonymous source revealed that, "Silcox is up to something. I've seen him leaving the building with wires and stuff under his arms. I once saw him carrying a big - really big - white baggy jumpsuit. He may look like he's talking to himself, but he's not. I've passed him in the hall and he's got this look in his eyes, like he's going to walk right through the wall. It's strange. Very strange."

Several students have also been overheard wondering why it takes so long to get marks in Silcox's class. Speculation rages that Silcox is transmitting PoliSci marks to another galaxy instead of to St. George. Ninth year Latin and Furnace Repair combined specialist student Whu Flung Pu stated, "I'm glad Genexon is taking such an interest in us. According to them I may be qualified to be the next Prime Minister of Canada." Stay tuned for further details, as The Inquisitor will boldy go where no other student paper has gone before.

Elvis spotted in Principal's office

by the Bop

Last month Arkansas Governor Billy Joe Reddnek and his brother/cousin/son-in-law Jim Bob reported the last known sighting of the King. That was until last week at Erindale College. It appears now that Elvis is back and with a vengeance. Until only recently the rumours of Elvis lurking around at Erindale had been unconfirmed. However there have been numerous reports of Elvis appearing in both the Meeting Place and, in a strange turn of events, the Principal's office.

Staff and students have been complaining of a strange man who was asking for fried banana sandwiches and jelly donuts. These complaints were filed with Campus Police, who, when they heard the part about the donuts, immediately began an investigation. Those who had filed complaints gave fairly accurate descriptions of Presley, who reportedly died in 1977 under somewhat mysterious circumstances. However, the descriptions were varied. They all mentioned that he was attired in a gargantuan jumpsuit, covered in sequins and a pair of rhinestone studded bifocals. Several of the witnesses gave descriptions mentioning Elvis' bloated condition, and the over abundance of sweat that rolled down his face. Also mentioned was, in the words of one complainant, "the most greasiest, most foul black stuff that was on his head" in reference to Presley's hair. Many other witnesses, however, stated that Presley had gone bald and now bears a striking resemblance to Erindale Principal Desmond Morton. The Inquisitor immediately put a team of crackpot reporters on the job and came up with the facts.

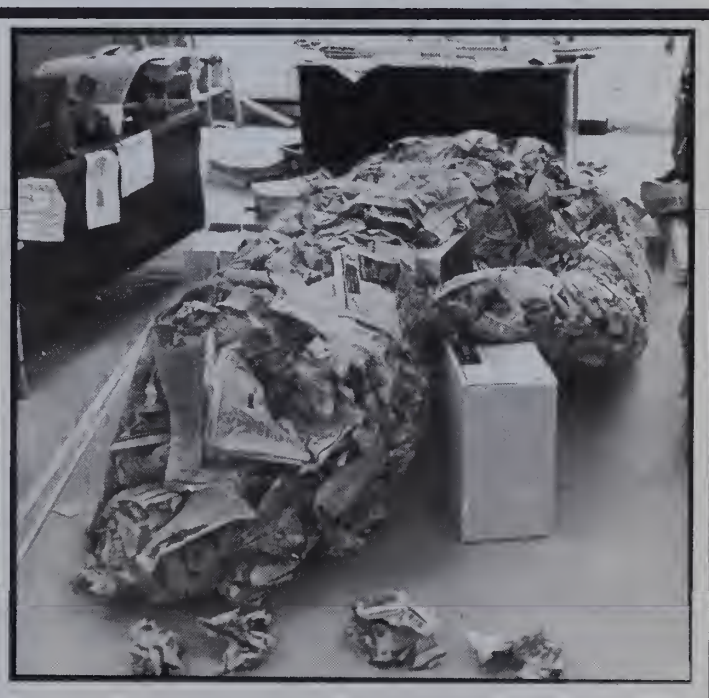
Realizing the trouble that the university is in financially, and hearing the rumours of Elvis' presence, Morton decided to take matters into his own hands. With confidant Glenn Walker he raided the Beaver Food's menu improvement fund and made a trip down to Graceland. Returning attired in his own rhinestone suit Morton began moonlighting as an Elvis impersonator at local weddings, bar mitzvahs, heavy metal concerts and Governing Council meetings. His success has lead many to speculate that Morton was in fact the King all along.

After taking note of the complaints and the locations of the sightings, ace photographer Ozzie Rodriguez attempted to clear the matter up by tracking both Presley and Morton down and snapping photos of them together. Unfortunately, Rodriguez was only able to find one of them at any given time, and had to deal with two rather large men who threatened physical injury if the photos were developed. Luckily Rodriguez made his escape by yelling "Hey, look, there's a whole box of jelly donuts!"

Presley (Morton?) was finally cornered for a few quick questions and answers. When asked about the sudden end of his singing and film careers, Presley replied "I'm all shook up." Presley responded to questions about his 'death' by saying he'd been staying at "Heartbreak Hotel". When finally asked why he'd come to Erindale, Presley replied, "Don't be cruel". He had taken offence at the implications of the name of one of Erindale's ball hockey teams, 'Elvis Was A Goon', and wanted to track down the perpetrators of such an offensive endeavour. For whomever was responsible, Presley said "You ain't nothin' but a Hound Dog."

At last report, the Campus Police were nowhere to be found. The Campus Police were heard to say that they hoped that this was the last of Presley's appearances at the college. They were afraid for their donuts.

As the singer left the Meeting Place stage he was heard to say, "people haven't seen the last of me, ... hm, ... say, are those jelly donuts?" Any fans of the King, or people interested in booking the talents of Morton, should contact Holly Benson in the Campus Relations office.



Condomania at ECSU!

by Dinky

As a result of running out of space to store bags of weekly hate mail, ECSU has decided to use the hundreds of sheets and envelopes to create a giant-sized papier-mache prophylactic for a float in next week's Right-to-Pre-Marital-Sex Parade. Ever since receiving letters of complaint about ECSU directors using the Pub as a limbo dance studio and letters demanding that David Koresh be brought to Erindale, the ECSU office has been bombarded with tons of paper. "We have so much that we can't see out the window," said secretary Zahida Ibrahim. "No one wants to come in here anymore to see us, except for John McCash." "Master" McCash, leader of the chastity group "Respect Yourself" that is against the inclusion of condoms in Orientation packages, continues his lone vigil of demonstration by fasting outside the ECSU office. The ECSU executive is excited about next week's parade. Watch for ECSU President Dave Amato when he comes down Mississauga Road as the captain of the fantastic phallic prophylactic float. He will no doubt be cheered on by all of Erindale's athletic supporters.

IRA strikes in phase 5

by Clark Kent
SPECIAL TO THE INQUISITOR

It has been confirmed that the explosion that left phase five in tatters last week was in fact set by members of the IRA--not by the same guys who set off the World Trade Centre Explosion as earlier suspected.

The Daily Planet, a British tabloid reported last week that the Queen would be staying in phase 5 at Erindale during her March visit to Canada this year. Of course this was false. As we know the Queen did not even visit Canada. But the IRA did not check to make sure that the newspaper story was correct. They said that as far as they were concerned if it was written in ink it must be true.

"I guess we jumped the gun," stated Finnegan O'Iamanidiot of the IRA. "Did we at least get to knock off a few kids?"

Fortunately, no one was hurt in the explosion. The IRA has sent a letter of apology to the residents of phase 5. They said it's the 10th one in as many weeks.

When Mike Leavelle was asked if there wasn't going to be any problem rebuilding Phase 5, he said, "It's no problem, we're just going to use the student's money. We'll raise their rent and give them phony exaggerated hydro bills. It's O.K. we've been doing it for years.

Erindale College Principal Desmond Morton becomes a Tory?

Erindale Principal Desmond Morton announced his candidacy for the leadership of the Progressive Conservative party last week, stating that "the problem with these bloody Conservatives is that they aren't socialist enough." When asked about this blatantly inconsistent, absurd, illogical and paradoxical statement, Morton further added, "the Tories need somebody like me to counter their right wing stances. They also need a historian to help in rewriting our past to better show the glory of the country." Running on a traditional platform of patronage and pork barrel politics, Morton realizes the stiff competition he faces, especially from Kim Campbell. However plans are already in the works for Morton to do a Playgirl photo shoot to "enhance his visibility." Morton plans to continue as Principal of Erindale College, stating that "those suits don't know what's good for them. They may not like me writing articles for The Toronto Star, but they'll sure as hell like it when I change the North Building into a brothel so they can go on more extravagant and unnecessary business trips.

Karen Kwan becomes spokesperson for Harvey's

After a whole year of endorsing Harvey's, the boring grey-suited bureaucrats who own the grease pit in the Meeting Place, have hired Karen Kwan, the medium II's news editor to be their official public relations official and spokesperson.

"She just did such a good job this year endorsing our restaurant that it would have been unreasonable to give the job to anyone else," said the bald guy in the suit who thinks he's important because he's got a million dollars in the bank. "As the result of Karen's work, Harvey's business has quadrupled. Harvey's rewards its faithful."

The fat lady in the polyester uniform who works for Beaver Foods added that as the result of Karen's fine work, The Blind Duck Pub, Harvey's main competition on campus, has had to file for bankrupcy.

"It's so nice to know that we don't have to operate in a fair market system. Now we can charge $5 per muffin and the students won't have any choice but to pay it."

In the meantime, former Blind Duck Pub manager, George Kidd, is so upset that he lost his job that he has vowed to "hunt Kwan down and give her a good wack on the butt."

The rumour is that Kidd has become a homeless beggar on the streets of Toronto as the result of Kwan's Harvey's stories.

STUDY!

Some University of Toronto med students are performing a study to determine the long-term effects of various narcotics on the general health of a chronic user. Several student volunteers are needed for this study which will require each participant to use a lot of drugs over the next three years. The drugs that are being tested are:

marijuana
LSD cocaine mescaline
ecstasy

The university is not liable for fatalities.

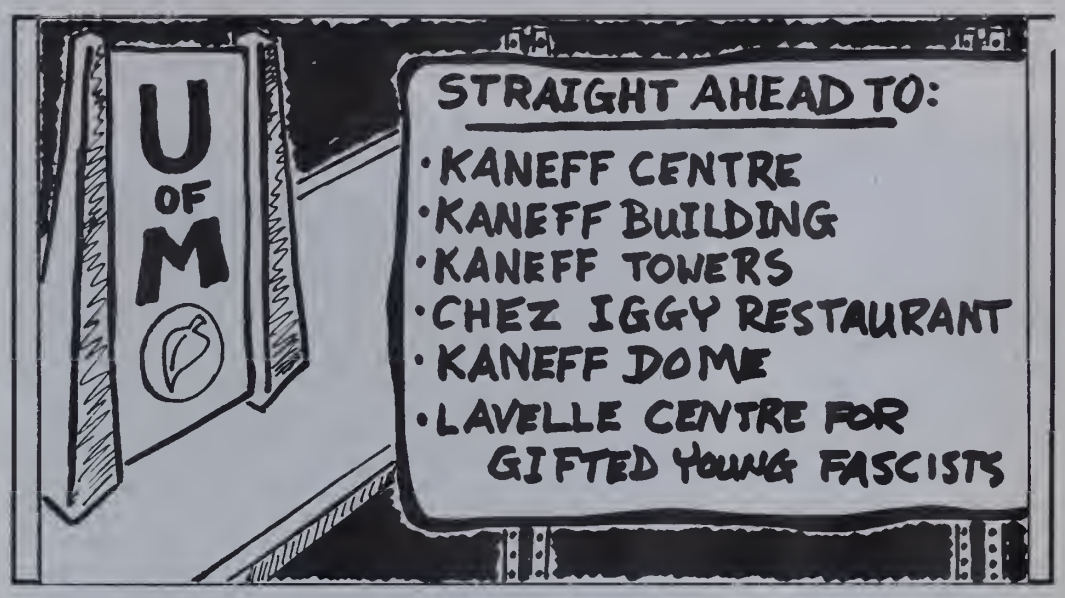
Walking Stic



The time is now!

It is clear that for Erindale to succeed it must separate itself from the University of Toronto. Mississauga Mayor Hazel McCallion has long been advocating such a move, and the time is obviously right to take her up on it. Mississauga is rapidly expanding and as long as we maintain ties with U of T, it would only be to our benefit. As long as Erindale students can still make use of the facilities, perhaps for a nominal annual charge, there will be no appreciable difference. The once esteemed University of Toronto name is steadily going into the dumps and we are being asked to pay more annually for fewer programs. I'm sure that if approached Iggy Kaneff would be willing to sponsor new facilities here at Erindale. A preliminary proposal which has been taken to Governing Council recommends that Lislehurst be turned into a luxury hotel/restaurant complex, while the four large lecture halls in the South Building would be handed over to Cineplex-Odeon for use as new theatres. These changes make sense. Referring to Lislehurst, U of T President Robert Prichard has already been quoted as saying, "so what if it's a pretty building; no one really uses it except as a place to keep the Principal out of the way." Isolating ourselves from the unfriendly confines of the U of T would also benefit Erindale financially. Currently we are saddled with a hefty portion of the University of Toronto's overall debt, however Vice-Principal Peter Silcox has gone on record as saying, "all this school needs is a big fat guy with a gun to change all that." This may seem a little drastic but McCallion and Kaneff would undoubtedly support such a move, and in return for the good faith shown would provide most of the Administration with complimentary Ford Pintos. If Erindale could claim autonomy the likelihood exists that bureaucracy as we know it would be eliminated. Hazel would have the opportunity to take over as Chancellor, President, Principal, Official Harvey's Food Taster and personal sex slave to the ECSU President. This would save the necessary funds to enable Erindale to open a Faculty of Fly Fishing and build a tunnel to the banks of the

DISTRAUGHT STUDENT GOES CRAZY

Ninth year Political Science and Home Economics student Brian Procter was arrested late last night on charges of malicious mischef. Procter was given an A+ on a pie baking assignment, however it was revealed that he used a Pillsbury crust and the Professor immediately dropped his grade to a C-. With the drop in grade Procter's chances for graduate school crumbled, and his retaliation was swift. Procter spotted one of the IRA terrorists in action in Phase V and stole one of his bombs, planting it in his Professors car. For photo evidence see front cover.

ECSU PRESIDENT LINKED TO MAFIA

Dave Amato, this year's ECSU President has been found to have links to the local mafia. Investigators have long wondered how Amato managed to maintain his 4.0 GPA while: President of ECSU; running a successful call girl operation out of the former Tuck Shop; providing a door-to-door drug service to residence students; maintaining his neatly groomed facial fur and sufficiently intimidating the Campus Police that they don't ticket him when he parks in the fire route. Director of Campus Relations Holly Benson went under the covers - I mean undercover - to get the details and found out that Amato had been tapping the phone calls of most of the Administration, and had a direct link between his office, Sicily and the computer systems in the Registrar's Office. By closely monitoring the calls there he had been able to avoid detection. For photo evidence see front cover.

Who would you most like to have sex with?

ELVIS PRESLEY

Well, uh, it's hard to say. Don't get me wrong now, I love Priscilla and everything, but there's this cute girl down at the Donut shop. Nibblin' on her sweet nuthin's would sure satisfy me hunger - at least until dinner time. I wonder if she'd go for using those jelly donuts in a special way...

SHARON STONE

You mean who wouldn't I like to have sex with. No but seriously, it's so hard to choose. Saddam Hussein is off the list, although those swarthy middle eastern men are great for my bondage moods. My first choice would probably be Foghorn Leghorn because he's such a big...

DOLLY PARTON

I'm always scared that when I'm on top I'm going to suffocate the person, so I would want somebody with big lips. Mick Jagger is the obvious choice but I think I prefer Arsenio. After all, he is a late night man and I'd like to know if the rumours are true...

Band Clash 93--Journey to the centre of the Self

by Christopher Barany

Zen and the art of Band Clash competition.

Band Clash! What spiritual marvels do the walls of the Blind Duck Pub unfold for the unexpecting student of suburbian satori! You saw the bands, you cheered for your favorites, you had your own, private versions of the real winners who rocked their way into your heart. But more importantly, you walked away with a newer, clearer perspective on life, helped by the love, insight and guidance provided by a crew of bands who possessed a unified desire to join hands in the name of humanity. In case you're having difficulty addressing these newly realized perspectives on life, let this article serve to aid you in summarizing the most important revelations which the bands provided. Have fun, and keep those messages comin'!

1) Don't let the name Threnody fool you. Although these rough-on-the-surface boys name the musical unit to which they affiliate their inner selves with after a symbol for a "song of death," the notion to which most people associate with this band's real intentions is often sprung from outright misinterpretation. Clearly, this group has a background in Eastern thought. Hence, when the mysterious name of this band reveals the words "song of death," the intended meaning concerns not death in a genocidal sense, but rather in the spiritual. The death of the Self is Nirvana. Hey, there's another band who are spreading the Dharma!

2) World peace will be attained when humanity discovers the unity of all beings. But before global unification can occur, respect and understanding with regards to other cultures, races, and religions must take place. David Kirin and the Kickbacks certainly belong to this school of thought, and they proved it at Band Clash this year. Bridging the gap between cultures is what this band is about. Where else can you find four white guys playing from an Afro-American urban tradition, who possesses both English and Italian backgrounds, playing in the cultural mosaic which Mississauga is! These guys really "wail the blues" and make their instruments "sing!"

3) Some of the wandering souls who searched for the answer in Uncle Chaos felt rather disappointed in the fact that the band did not play this year. The question is, why? Ugly rumours on the band members abound, from "bad attitudes" to "outright liars." That's bad energy, and bad energy means bad karma. What most people aren't aware of is the fact that Uncle Chaos are not merely a band, but a spiritual energy centre. Their decision to remain silent this year and provide more energy through the invocation of silence than through words indicates the Zen perspective which must be taken when deciphering the true meaning behind these spiritual leaders.

4) All of us at Erindale know about the concept of yin and yang from our collective spiritual consciousness here on campus, and Wrench, obviously being a musical and social embodiment of such a notion, were in full swing this year. Their long, flowing hair and "earthy" attitudes to life and love combine beautifully with the abrasiveness of their sound and Post Industrialist band name. Out of this combination of opposites blooms the essence that is late-twentieth century life in Mississauga.

5) Picking specific bands and imposing judgements on them, even if to do nothing but spread their love and messages of peace, should in the long run be considered conventional dualist thought, and hence is not representative of the true messages these bands exhibit. Even though above list does come from such a worldly perspective, there can be no doubt that they are irrelevant comments, and are more effective when looked at in an inspirational manner. The bottom line, then, is the fact that Band Clash 93 was a success in that it was a celebration of humanity. Races, religions, and cultures all mixed harmoniously and collectively drew a small breath of love for all beings.

Shocked student claims "I'll never be the same again!" after hearing Radio Erindale

by Cid Vicious

I. M. Con Fused, a 2nd year Survey Science student could very well be the only Erindale student to have ever heard Radio Erindale programming outside Colman Place.

The incident occurred in a first phase living room (house number withheld to protect all parties involved.) Remarked Con Fused, "We just wanted to see if the speaker would work. Honest. I didn't mean to cause any trouble by turning it on."

Since this incident, Con Fused wanders aimlessly around the Gasworks searching for the x-rated rock 'n' roll sound which has changed his life.

Reports Con Fused, "The speaker was muffled. Yet there is no doubt that the April Wine tribute set opened my ears to the potentials of human artistic capabilities."

It is obvious that Con Fused's life has never been the same since this dramatic musical experience. Gone are Con Fused's polo shirts and deck shoes. Today Con Fused says "hello" to those bright yellow feather roach clips which he tastefully applies to his girlfriend Tammy's fringed purse.

And the musical revelations?

"April Wine was just the beginning. I have recently searched out hard to find bootlegs of Trooper, Cheap Trick, Journey and Styx. I hold Radio Erindale soley responsible for this newly found artistic insanity."

Erindale Theatre announces their 1993-1994 line-up by John E. Rotten

While the Erindale Theatre is being revamped for the 1993-94 school year, an exciting season of theatrical events is now being planned.

Among the confirmed acts is Stompin' Tom Connors' interpretation of The Who's rock musical Tommy (complete with a new arrangement of "Pinball Wizard," renamed "Pinball Wizard on a Sudbury Saturday Night.)

Other heavy-hitting artists taking part in the all-new Tommy are Tommy Hunter as Tommy, and Woody Allen as the Pinball Wizard (if he's out of court.)

As a December Christmas special, Billy Ray Cyrus will be performing all of his hit songs in a special 5-minute spotlight performance reserved for up-and-going musical stars that have really bad hair. As a special treat (to fill in the remaining 3 minutes of the 5 minute performance) the theatre has employed a Dolly Parton look-alike to lip-synch her hit entitled Romeo, while Billy Ray flaunts his acting skills as Romeo in the background. Yes girls, Billy Ray's tight butt will be featured too!

The most fabulous event of the year is booked for February. The Osmond family (including Donny!) will be holding a week long family reunion and revival meeting. Daily, the Osmonds will meet with a family therapist to publicly sort through the dilemmas that faced the family when they reached super-stardom in the late 1970's.

Nightly, the Osmonds will join together in song on their publicly broadcast revival meeting entitled "Finding Strength in the Socio-historical Origins of the Family Singing Unit." Medleys of well-known songs from the Donny and Marie Osmond Show will be performed. Yes, all of your favorites, ranging from Come On Marianne and A my Name is Alice, to the ever-popular A Little Bit Country and a Little Bit Rock and Roll will be featured. As well, Donny will perform selected songs from Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat - actually, just the songs when he has his shirt off.

A special guest during the topless Joseph selections will be the ever-topless Marky Mark. The goal for the Osmonds during their week is to save Marky Mark and his brother Donny Wahlberg from the life of prejudice and arson they practice, while preserving their faith in their musical family unit.

When asked about the reunion, Donny Osmond explained, "Getting together again will be a cleansing experience for the whole family. I am particularly looking forward to it because I will be able to boast about the fact that I am working, and Marie is a has-been. (He laughs heartily.) We were always quite competitive."

When asked about his relationship with his sister, Donny said, "All of the rumors are true. We were lovers. When we said "Goodnight everybody!" at the end of the show, we really meant it."

The affair is now over with, according to Donny, who has a family of his own. "Unfortunately, Marie's marriage was ruined because of our affai." Donny continued, "But with our renewed faith in the socio-historical origins of our singing unit, we have overcome our passions for our mental well-being."

So there you have it - the best of the 1993-94 theatre season here at Erindale. How could you miss buying season tickets when Stompin' Tom, Tommy Hunter, Marky-Mark, Billy Ray and the Osmonds are appearing? Check the box office in September for details, and come out to support Erindale Theatre's first annual Festival of the Stars Who Have Used up Their 15 Minutes of Fame. See you there!

Teams to strip to raise $$ for programs

by S. Wallow

With the recent Department of Recreation cutbacks, the Men's football, ball hockey and ice hockey teams here at Erindale have voted unanimously to pursue their own fundraising activities.

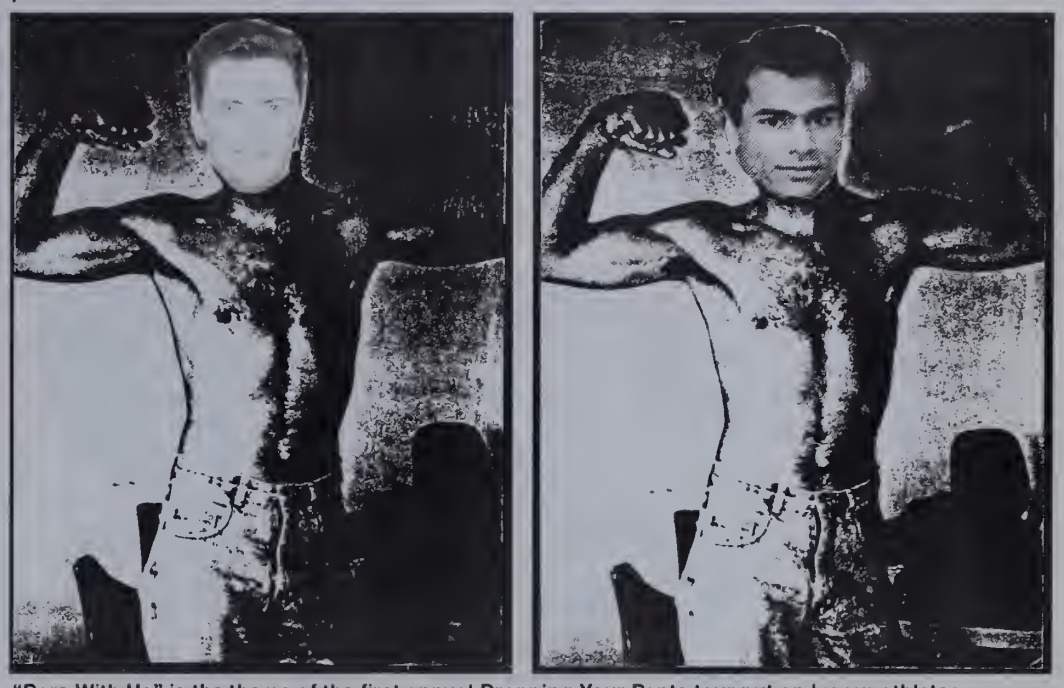
Auditions for their Dropping Your Pants tour this upcoming April will begin this week says spokes woman for the team, Ms. Phil A. Show. She adds "the team is very enthusiastic that their fundraising efforts will raise millions for their cause."

Two of the more enthusiastic and soon-to-be rippers are Manfred Sittmann and Lars Skjold-Pettersen. Upon asking them what they think of the idea Sitmann said, "I've been dropping the gloves all year, so why not drop my pants, after all it is for a good cause." Pettersen says "I'm not used to women falling at my feet so it will be a refreshing change." Apparently Zubin Bamji, the exotic star of the dance troupe, will be available for autographs on April 10th in the Meeting Place.

It has also been rumoured that the men's ice hockey team is also quite interested in getting involved. It seems Ted (Hot Buns) Henley has his routine already planned. His costume consists of a spectacular Ditrani ski suit covering a hot pink, velcro G-string. Though normally shy, Henley says he will take off whatever he has to to raise the money. Brett Eyers has also expressed interest in the venture. His provocative dancing and debonair style make him an ideal candidate for the job. His routine will feature baby oil and a shower scene.

The Army of Lovers will put on a spectacular ensemble featuring the likes of Abbas (don't break your wrist) Khan, Jason (Sh-wing) Schuy, George (the Snack) Benack, Roberto (I'm just average) Roman and last but not least, Tom (Long Dong) Wong. These men will perform a dazzling show to songs like YMCA, Love to Love You Baby and Like a Virgin.

Sources says, their show will be very memorable as it includes many favourite props.



"Bare With Us" is the theme of the first annual Dropping Your Pants tour put on by our athletes.

ECSU officials have said that brothers Matt and Frank Barrese will perform a delectable duo to "We Are Family" for the expectant and delirious crowd.

ECARA spokesperson Peter Baxter says the plan is absolutely degrading. He says "I will not have my men parading around naked and being treated like mere chattell..." The Inquisitor thinks Baxter is just upset because no one asked him to partake in the show. Maybe next year, Pete?

It is not sure how much money will be raised, but a good time is sure to be had by all .

Editor drowns her sorrows

by Con. E Lingus

Last seen trapsing around the pub in a skin tight mini dress and cowboy boots was the medium II Sports Editor, Tamara Wickens. As soon as D.J Nick Pace played "Can You Feel It", she went crazy.

Witnesses say she just jumped on the stage and began tearing off her clothes. No one knows what was wrong with her. Sources say she was so distraught over some letters to the editor that she had to drink. Apparently bartender Steve Silveira knew this and slipped some Ecstacy into her vodka and 7 and she went crazy. Friends say she never acts like that; she is normally a very quiet, soft spoken and definitely, non-sexual kind of person.

Members of her ball hockey team said she was unlike herself; crawling on the floor and acting like a cat, "It was unreal!"

Inquisitor sources say that at one point she only had her bra and underwear on when Pub manager George Kidd grabbed a jacket and covered her up. Then he yelled at her because this performance wasn't in her contract.

Kidd says that Ms. Wickens has a contract with the Pub to strip only on Tuesday's, not Thursdays. Kidd says, "It's busy enough on Thursdays, we need the business on Tuesdays.

Upon speaking with Ms. Wickens we learned that she does not have a contract with the pub and she will be suing the establishment for defamation and purposely putting drugs in her drink.

Tamara Wickens seen being bad at the pub

Ms. Wickens is a very amiable person who never takes drugs and for that matter never drinks.

Her provocative "I want you to want me" ECARA campaign was absolutely no reflection of her personality. Ms. Wickens says that things are back to normal and she only has these outbursts occasionally.

Inquisitor's predictions for 1994

by Johnny Go Holmes

- Susbir Singh and Motin Amin will play a full game without a penalty.
- Abbas Khan will be asked to play for the Leafs.
- Lars Skjold-Pettersen will become Chairman of the Board of Proper Referee Conduct.
- Manfred Sittmann will be editor of Turn the Other Cheek: the magazine for non- violence.
- Dan Boisvert will lead a march to Don Cherry's house on Mississauga Road in favour of reffing in the stands.
- Mike Metelsky and Jim Romanko will hold seminars on how to get the ball in the net from the blue line.
- CCCP and the Slashers will spend the next few weeks in Florida golfing to their heart's content.

THE PLANET OG

by raymond smullyan

★☆ The planet Og is inhabited by two races—the green people and the red people. The green people always tell the truth and the red people always lie—but only if they were born in the northern hemisphere. Inhabitants of Og born in the southern hemisphere do just the opposite: The green people always lie and the red people always tell the truth. If you don't know where a person is from, or can't identify a person's race, a conversation on Og can be very puzzling ... ANSWERS, PAGE 40

1. ONE DARK NIGHT

Once a traveler from our planet Earth visited the planet Og and met a native on the street one very dark night.

"Are you red?" he asked. The native didn't answer.

"Are you a southerner?" the traveler asked. Again the native didn't answer.

"Are you not going to say anything?" asked the traveler.

Before walking away the native replied: "If I answered no to both of your first two questions, I would be lying at least once."

Is it possible from this to determine the native's color and which hemisphere he is from?

2. ARK AND BARK

This problem concerns two inhabitants of Og, a red northerner and a southerner (possibly red, possibly green). One of the two is named Ark and the other Bark. They made the following statements:

Ark: Bark and I are the same color.

Bark: Ark and I are different colors.

Which one is right? Which one is the northerner? What color is the southerner?

3. ORK AND BORK

Two natives named Ork and Bork made the following statements:

Ork: Bork is from the north.

Bork: Ork is from the south

Ork: Bork is red.

Bork: Ork is green.

What color is Ork and where is he from? And Bork?

4. A AND B

Two natives, A and B, of different colors made the following statements:

A: B is a northerner.

B: Both of us are northerners.

What are A and B?

5. IS THERE A QUEEN?

Any two siblings on the planet Og are necessarily the same color, but not necessarily from the same hemisphere. (The mother might have given birth to one, then sometime later crossed the equator and given birth to the other.)

The anthropologist Abercrombie once visited Og and was curious to find out if the planet has a queen. He found the answer when he came across two brothers, who made the following statements.

First brother. I am a northerner, and this planet has no queen.

Second brother. I am a southerner, and this planet has no queen.

Is there a queen or not?

6. METAPUZZLE

A logician from our planet visited Og and met a native one dark night and asked him whether he was a green northerner. The native answered (yes or no), but the logician couldn't tell from his answer what he was.

A second logician met the native on another dark night and asked him whether he was a green southerner. The native answered (yes or no), but the logician couldn't figure out what he was.

On another dark night, a third logician met the native and asked him whether he was a red southerner. The native answered (yes or no), but the logician couldn't figure out what he was.

What was he?

FOUR BY FOUR

In the addition problem below, most of the digits have been replaced by letters. Can you replace each letter with a different digit to make the sum correct? Note: The 1's and 6's that appear in the sum have not been replaced by letters, so no letter can represent those numbers.

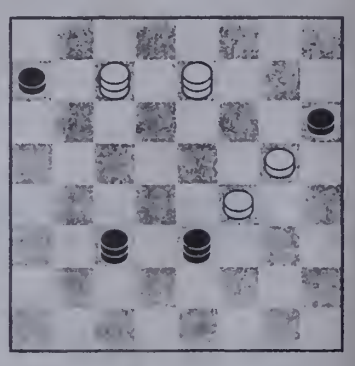
CHECKERS

WIPEOUT

White is moving up the board in the diagramed checkers position below. It's White's turn. What moves will guarantee victory?



Standard checkers rules apply: If a jump is possible, it must be taken. If two jumps are possible, either may be taken, even if one is a multiple jump and the other isn't. Crowning a king ends a turn. Only kings may move backward. The game is won either by capturing all of the opponent's pieces or by leaving your opponent unable to move

LOGIC

ON QUEUE

Every morning before setting out for school, the five Impligh children—Irving, Isaac, Iphigenia, Ivan, and Isadora—stand in line to receive their lunch money. While doing so, they rigidly obey their parents' orders:

1. "If the last in line doesn't wear a backpack, then nobody else can either."
2. "If you wear a sweater, you may not wear a backpack."
3. "If you wear a hat, you may not wear sneakers."
4. "If you wear loafers, you may not wear a jacket."
5. "If you wear sneakers or a hat, you may not be first in line."

One morning, as the lunch money line moved forward, Iphigenia stumbled against her sister's backpack and stepped back onto a loafered toe. On this occasion, all the children wore either a sweater or a jacket, and either sneakers or loafers; Isaac and at least one other wore hats; and Irving did not wear a backpack.

What was their lineup order, and how were they attired?
